“ We got to know Caleb when he helped his father build our screen porch. He was in high school then and so full of energy and a love for life. And so we would marvel at the times when he would just sit quietly with us, a couple of old folks, and talk about his interest in electronics, going to college, and being worried about making the right decisions in his life. We were so very fond of him and looked forward to watching him as he navigated all the paths he saw before him. How could anyone have anticipated this, his last path? Along with his family, and everyone who ever knew him, we are heartbroken.

We are grateful for having known him and will always remember him.
