7 years without my dad, somebody I called Daddy. I was 10 when I lost him, yet I always find myself coming back here every once in a while to reminisce on the day he left us. He was stubborn, strong willed...but a goofy, loving man. He is the type who will always be missed, to an extreme extent. I miss the times when riding the bus home was good because every now and then I'd get off and he was waiting for me...the mornings I'd go with him to dialysis and we'd be chewing juicy fruit under his wolf blanket watching tv...I miss it, but he isn't in pain. I forgot his voice years ago, until I finally found one...no matter whether I'm currently grieving again or not, I'll always come back to his remembrance. I hope you know Dad, Daddy, that I'll always love you and miss you. My age won't matter, my changes won't matter...I'll always be your 10 year old little girl that you called "MyMy" or "Munchkin". I never want to quit being your Munchkin. I love you so much.

“ My daddy was the. Strongest man I knowed and not always on the right side of doing things but I sure can tell you lol he knew how to walk a fine line so he didn't get in too much trouble but handled business or had fun my best memory of my daddy is when I was little I'd sit in the floor of the Peterbilt truck and play with my hot wheels and then get in the passenger seat and try to stay up with him witch I never could. And he would pull over and Pick me up and put me to bed after he tell me to go lay down but I guess I got my stubbornness from him cause I'd say I'm fine daddy I'm not going to sleep lol he knew better he always did I love you daddy

“ Oh how we always wish for more time. Granted, I didn't see you like I wished I would've, I'm still thankful for the times I did spend with you. Every year I look forward to Christmas Eve at Pop's, just to see everyone and catch up on the year that has went by. This past Christmas I remember sitting next to you and Amiya and how you were telling me that you call her a "tenager". You said "everyone always says 'dont you mean a teenager?' and I tell them no a tenager because she is ten years old and acts like a teenager." My response to you was "that's funny. When my daughter was three years old I called her a threenager!". And me, you and Amiya all laughed. I'm so thankful for small but precious memories like that. I don't know how I'm going to react this coming year for Christmas with you not being there. Every year I've gotten a picture with you.. I'm not ready for that tradition to end Uncle Calvin. I love you. And I'm going to miss you so much. 💔 Until we meet again.
