“ Frank changed my life. I was a hopeless high school graduate with a GPA that would make most professors lose all hope in me. But my freshmen year of taking his Chemistry 1 class, he gave me more encouragement than anyone in my life has ever did. Throughout that short time, Frank has encouraged me to pursue my dream of becoming a doctor and also urged me to change my major to biochemistry and aim for an MD-PhD. I am currently a junior and still going strong, I have never had a professor and friend that has impact me as greatly as Frank did. I will always have him in my mind whenever I achieve success and know that Frank is watching and guiding me from a better place.

“ Jasmine and I are still so shocked that he is gone and we are so sorry to hear. We were also so happy that we decided to stop there for Christmas this year and God really works in mysterious ways to send us on a road trip through there at that time. We all really enjoyed our time there and he was a gracious host to us. I wish we would have gotten to spend more time with him. When he talked about you Louise, you could really feel how proud he was of you and how much he loved you. He lived life to the fullest and I know he was internally happy. He will definitely be missed.

“ Still, it's hard, very hard in fact for me to accept this terrible news, Simply I had so many plans regarding you Frank. I expected You to meet again here at my place and then to make a great tour around North and Baltic coast in the summer. Make sure Frank we (my family, too) stay with you! Sad for me to write now that you were, instead saying you are, my friend, since we met first time long time ago (in 1981). For sure you are with us, too!

“ Oh, Louise, I'm so, so sorry. I will miss Frank greatly. He (and you) are a big part of our family. I'm so happy he decided to make Royston his home so many years ago.

“ He was one of a kind for sure. Kept me smiling and on my toes. We traveled everywhere. We have seen more beautiful sunsets and rain storms from the back porch than I can count. I will never forget your kindness support encouragement and your wit. Things just rolled off your tongue naturally and we would laugh and laugh. I will miss you every day. You will always have a place in my heart. Love you so much. Rest In Peace my sweet Frank.

“ I am so happy I got to stay with Frank and Joan for a week last year. Joan worked so I was with Frank a lot, Here was a man who loved his food and drink. He was not a fast food kind of person, yet he drove me to mcdonalds everyday to get a ice coffee, Nope I could not convince him to get one. as he would NEVER eat fast food. I must say he was quite a cook, making several delicious meals for us. To get any loving emotion out of Frank was quite a challenge, Oh it's there, he just doesn't show it. When he drove me to the airport on my way home, he puts out his hand to shake mine. (NOPE that was not going to fly by me) I gave him a giant hug and got the smile I wanted from him. Porch sitter he was, counting his cows and watching the sunset every night. I can still see him and Joan in my mind riding the tractor off to fix the fences, what a wonderful team they were. His love for his daughter, he called her Bunches, I am like why, and the answer was love her bunches, The Swamp a favorite place of his (where he made me eat frog legs and other strange things) . He loved to travel, Frank had a life to envy. I am so glad I took that spontaneous trip to Georgia or I would of never known him
