“ We could write a book on the special years we were neighbors to James and Norma. Many visits, meals, times working on tractors, exchanging vegetables grown in our gardens, babysitting for each other and just plain having fun not to forget our worship together as families in our church. He was a wonderful neighbor and friend. He will be missed by all who knew and loved him. Now he is well and happy to be with Jesus and Norma and his family and friends who have gone before him. May God comfort and bring peace to his family he left behind.

“ Our Pa was an innovative, humorous, hard-working, spiritual man. He liked to tell jokes and was a gifted orator and storyteller. He had an arsenal of homemade recipes (biscuits, Brunswick stew and dumplings to name a few!) His homemade sausage was famous in town, and friends and family often had freezers packed with it. He had a unique set of creative craftsmanship skills, often inventing a new tool when needed and then tossing it out when he was finished. He never met a problem he couldn't concoct a solution for. He was a gardener, farmer, cook, craftsman, preacher, and family man. He outlived all his siblings and friends, probably because he was too stubborn to let life take him before he was good and ready. Later in life he had a harder time getting around and standing in the kitchen to cook was difficult but he still dreamed. He said, "One of these days I'm gonna make me a real breakfast. I want me a piece of tenderized smoked ham, with two or three fried eggs over-light. I want the yolks to walk. Two homemade biscuits, from the tin is fine, and some grits, with a glass of tea." Sounds pretty good to me. Miss you and love you, Pa.

“ Miss you Pa! You taught me how to drive a tractor, you taught me how to plant a garden, how to shoot a gun and how to get a catfish off the line without getting stuck by its fin. And no matter how many times our go cart broke or quit running you would weld it back asap so we always had something fun to do around the house! Can't wait to see you and ma again! It's not goodbye it's see you later! Jason
