“ I was barely six years old when he called me by name and started asking me questions. He had already talked to my older brothers and rest of his life, he claimed a father's authority over me and steered me in an honorable direction. I remember the same disappointed look he gave me when if I let him down and did not make a good decision like he taught me. I know he was proud and he said that I was the only one that he never had to bail out of something. The world has forever changed now that you're gone. Oh, but the rewards that Heaven has for you will last you for eternity!
